This probably gives you the sense of who was involved. Also, Deborah McDowell, Director of the Woodson Institute. Jenn Stertzer is the leading person. I think their interface for crowd editing was pretty cool.

Dear Alison and Laura,

Thank you for your quick help with these items! Planning for the general Scholars' Lab space on August 15th sounds good to me.

Laura: Our promotional materials are currently being circulated among the planning group and a few other individuals. I'll be sure to pass along as soon as we get the go-ahead. Thanks for being willing to share them on our behalf!

With warm regards,
Katie

Katie,

When you get a chance, do you have any information about this event? If/when you do, please send it along. We'd be happy to help you spread the word.

Best,
Laura

Dear Katie,

I'm happy to say people in the Scholars' Lab agree with my first thought, when I read your email about space for this event. It is really well suited to the general Scholars' Lab exhibition space, in the front of the large 419 Alderman hall. We have good support for people to work together in that space (furniture, outlets, even workstations nearby), and it has the advantage of being visible, so people would notice and easily join in or come and go.

We don't need to reserve this space, since it is "ours." Laura and Amanda (copied here) can help plan how we get the word out.

Best,
Alison

Dear Alison:

As the Carter G. Woodson Institute and Center for Digital Editing continue to plan the #TranscribeBond event for August 15, I'm writing to see if there are any spaces in Alderman that we could use for one of the transcription hubs that day. Unfortunately, I see that Alderman 421 is already taken. Do you of another room available from 10 AM to 4 PM on August 15 that could house 8-10 people?

I appreciate your help with this, and I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,
